calm to provide physical relief, as from the pain of a person who is perceived to have his own distinct existence condescendingly behaving patronizingly impotently lacking the power or ability of malicious wishing or appearing to desire evil to another indigenous person, where he found careless not reasonable, responsible, or wise to admit defeat to the literate able to read and write supposedly stated but not proven intimidating by the act of scaring the weak man to make them a weaker person, to make their time or order tyrannical marked by unjust gravity or arbitrary behavior meditatively in a meditative manner of calm state of silence and serenity of lawlessness an unjust ethical action adhering to the moral principles of dismemberment of limb removal; cut to pieces to insistently be persistent, refuse to terminate the arbitration act between the parties in order to reconcile the differences of the edification of the uplifting enlightenment concession act yielding to the tact implied or withdrawn from actions or statements of malignant health hazards reasonably in a reasonable manner favorable indication of favorable circumstances and good luck dilapidated in a poor or broken state contemptuously expressing contempt of the person exaggerated for the comic effect of the attribute that distinguishes objects or persons incomprehensible it is impossible to understand similar similar or equivalent in some respects imperceptible not visible or easily noticeable aberration of the state or state markedly different from the norm of provocation unfriendly behavior, which causes anger or resentment to articulate express or state clearly accost approach and speak with someone aggressively or persistently slandering false and malicious publication of invective offensive expressions used to express guilt or slander, to settle the dispute with the fist fight, so we consulted Atticus. Atticus's untainted impeccably clean and fresh office in the courthouse contained little more than a hat rack, spit, chessboard and Alabama's untainted code. The satisfactory satisfaction of the demands of Jem and I found our father satisfactory; he played with us, read to us, and treated us with a polite detachment, the tyrannical characteristics of the absolute ruler or absolute rule she has been with us ever since Jem was born, and I felt her tyrannical presence for as long as I remember. lack not to attend Our mother died when I was two years old, so I never felt her absence. The revelation of the instructive or surprising disclosure of Dill saw Dracula, a revelation that moved Jem's eyes on him with the beginning of respect, yield to being ready to give in it was all right to shut it up. Mr. Radley acknowledged, but that Boo would not be charged with anything; he was not a criminal. No one knew what form of bullying Mr Radley employed to keep Boo out of sight, but Jem realized that Mr. Radley kept him bedridden most of the time, refusing to refuse to take over for the rest of his life, Jem never refused to dare. A foray of a sudden short attack, Jem opened the gate and sped towards the house, hit him with his palm and ran back past us without waiting to see if his foray was successful, unfortunate very miserable We saw him off for five hours of the bus and I was miserable without him until it occurred to me that I would start school a week. Condescendingly doing what is considered below his dignity is Jem condescendingly taking me to school on the first day, the job is usually done by his parents, but Atticus said Jem would be happy to show me where my room was, forcing someone to do something now that I was forced to think about it, reading was something that had just come to me, how to learn to fasten the place of my union costume without looking back, or reaching two bows from growing shoelaces, and lay out to add details of how to account or the idea Atticus was laying out on the farm problem when Walter interrupted to ask if there was molasses in the house, unsustainable responsibility for the sudden unpredictable change she was furious, and when she was furious the grammar of Calpurnia became unsustainable, contradict to prove negative; show to be false There's some people who don't eat like us, whispered it furiously, but you're not encouraged to contradict them at the table when they don't, humiliation of a strong sense of embarrassment I got my plate and finished dinner in the kitchen, grateful though that I was spared the humiliation of facing them again, Amiable diffusion of warmth and friendliness He waited in kind silence, and I sought to reinforce my position: You never went to school and you're all right, so I'll just stay home too, exclusive not separated or shared with others He said that the Ewells were members of an exclusive society made up of Ewells, take off something like, lifting, shoving, or withdrawing I stood on tiptoe, hurriedly looked back again, reached into the hole, and took off two pieces of chewing gum minus their outer wrappers, unanimously in full agreement Ms. Dubose lived two doors up the street from us, and the neighborhood's view was unanimous that Ms. Dubose was the meanest old woman who had ever lived, an arbitration act between the parties to agree on the differences of the Jam arbitration, awarded me the first push with extra time for drill, and I folded myself inside the tire, inquisitive, curious, if he wants to stay in his own home, he has the right to remain inside free from the attention of inquisitive children, which was a soft term for the likes of us, peculiar outside or deviating from the usual or expected what Mr. Radley did might seem strange us, but it didn't seem strange to him. Him, in poor or broken condition, the back of Radley's house was less attractive than the front: a dilapidated porch running the width of the house; there were two doors and two dark windows between the doors. At first reading, Harper Lee's To Kill a Mockingbird may seem like a simple and unadorned-simple story, told in an easy way. But Lee's decision to subtly blend the perspective of a 6-year-old girl and an adult woman gives a story of innocence and gravitas at the same time. The most obvious sign of technique is vocabulary, which is often far beyond what a child of this age will be comfortable with, allowing a small child to tell a story in a very adult way. Definition: Extremely unstretched, disgusting. Example: He gave up the hideous blue shorts that were buttoned up on his shirt and wore real short trousers with a belt; he was somewhat heavier, not higher, and said he had seen his father. Definition: Seems imbued with success. Example: The rest of my school days were no more favorable than the first. Indeed, they were an endless project that slowly evolved into a unit in which miles of construction paper and wax pencil were spent by the state of Alabama in its best-intentioned but fruitless efforts to teach me Group Dynamics. Definition: Carefully cling to something. Example: I once asked her to chew and she said no, thanks for the chewing gum splitting to her taste and rendered her speechless. Definition: Facial expression, general visual representation of mood. Example: Miss Modi replied: A cheerful heart make a cheerful face! Definition: Intense disapproval. Example: I fear that our activities will be perceived with considerable disapproval by more studied authorities. Definition: The act of giving something. Example: Jem's free dispensation of my promise annoyed me, but precious moments of the afternoon ticked away. Definition: Dealing with the church. Example: Starkly out of place in the city's square-faced shops and steep rooftop houses, Maycomb Prison was a miniature Gothic joke one cage wide and two cages high, complete with tiny walls and flying supports. His imagination was enhanced by his red brick facade and thick steel bars at church windows. Definition: Act of education or awareness. Example: However, everything he read, he handed me, but with this difference: before, because he thought I would like it, now, for my edification and instruction. Definition: Moving erratically. Example: She was furious, and when she was furious the grammar of Calpurnia became erratic. Definition: Innocent and free from ulterior motives. Example: He was a year older than me, and I avoided him in principle; he enjoyed everything I disapproved of, and did not like my unusual diversions. Definition: Wanting to do do active desire to be malicious towards someone or something. Example: Inside the house lived an evil phantom. People said he existed, but Jem and I never saw him. People said he went out at night when the moon was down and looked out the windows. When the azaleas of people froze in the cold snap, it was because he was breathing on them. Any hidden petty crimes committed in Maycomb were his job. Definition: Reverence, devotion. Example: All we had was Simon Finch, a pharmacist from Cornwall whose piety was exceeded only by his stinginess. Definition: Exclusive right or privilege acquired through status or rank. Example: When Aunt Alexandra went to school, doubts in themselves could not be found in any textbook, so she did not know its meaning. She was never bored, and she was given even the slightest chance that she would fulfill her royal prerogative: she would organize, advise, warn and warn. Definition: Exceptional ability and strength in a particular area. Example: Cem said Mr. Avery wrong, Dill said he should drink a gallon a day, and the subsequent contest to determine relative distances and corresponding prowess only made me feel obligatory again as I was talentless in the field. Definition: For stewing or suppression. Example: Miss Modi's tin roof suppressed the flames. Definition: Poorly done, falling apart. Held together in a fragile way. Example: As they came, one and two men shuffled back into their dilapidated cars. Definition: Naturally, quiet, not given speech. Example: Their sister Alexandra was Finch, who stayed in The Landing; she married a silent man who spent most of his time lying in a hammock by the river wondering if his lynx lines were full. Definition: Reckless courage, excessive confidence, unsuitable for the situation. Example: And so quiet, respectable, humble who had the un limited courage to feel sorry for a white woman had to put his word against two white men. Definition: Extreme abuse of power and power. Example: Calpurnia has always won, mainly because Atticus has always taken her side. She's been with us since Jem was born, and I've felt her tyrannical presence for as long as I can remember. Definition: Do not understand, incomprehensible. Example: For the most experienced prophets in Maycomb County, autumn has turned into winter this year. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary chapter 1. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary quizlet. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary chapter 2. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary worksheet answers. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary chapter 7. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary chapter 4. to kill a mockingbird vocabulary list
